By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A West Sacramento man has put together a collection of his world-traveling photographs and assembled them into a book.

Jeffrey Allen Wright, 24, is a "self-taught" photographer whose book, "Ambiguity of the Eye" can now be ordered directly from the publisher, AuthorHouse (www.authorhouse.com) or from Amazon.com. The book's price is $25.

"My day job is in international recruitment," Wright told the News-Ledger. "That's actually how I came into taking photographs. I was being flown overseas, and I started taking pictures. I've shot in Prague, Poland, Thailand, South Korea as well as in the U.S."

Do his photographs have a theme?

"I was kind of tired of walking through bookstores and seeing the same subject matter, and what looked like the same shots, over and over again in a book," Wright responded. "My goal was to throw something out there that was different – where you see a new image every time you turn the page. It ended up being kind of a mixture of landscapes, portraiture, and a few abstracts here and there."

Wright's favorite subjects are often found in East Europe – and that fondness shows up in his book.

"I love Prague," he said. "Prague is one of the most gorgeous cities in Europe. I love the castle there. And Estonia is very nice. What I like about Europe is the style and the structure. The cobblestones, for example."

Wright's images are presented in both color and black and white, and are taken by a digital camera that Wright says "is not technically even a professional camera."

The book is "self-published," using a for-a-fee publishing house that offers different levels of support to a budding author.

"I chose to do the book myself as far as the layout, the graphic design and so forth," he said. "I went through it page by page and put everything together for them. They approved it and outletted it to Amazon.com and Barnes and Noble as well as their own website."

The book has been available for about two months, but Wright said he didn't know yet how well it had been selling.

Wright is a graduate of West Sacramento's River City High School, and a lifelong resident.

One more reason to replace that water heater, fix that roof:

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

It looks like West Sacramento residents will soon be treated to a chance for a free building permit for common home improvement projects. During this "holiday," the usual building permit fees will be waived. The idea, championed by City Councilman Oscar Villegas, met with a favorable reception from the rest of the council last month.

"The idea of reinvesting back into our community is a no-brainer when interest rates are low and there is home equity available to do so," said Villegas, explaining that the "home improvement holiday" would encourage people to pep up their homes. "It would involve maybe the top ten things people usually get a building permit for. It might be for new roofing, or to replace a sewer line, or put in a new fence, patio cover or water heater. The maximum building permit fee saved might be a couple of hundred bucks. The lowest fees saved would be probably in the $30-$40 range."

The details are yet to be finalized by the city's building department, but Villegas expects the program to last for about two months sometime this spring.

How much money would the city lose in building permit revenue during the "holiday"?

"It's hard to tell," answered Villegas. "It depends on how much it is promoted and how many people take advantage of it. It could be in the neighborhood of $10,000. But the goods and services that would be purchased as a result of the work would be coming back to the city in the form of sales taxes relatively quickly. It's a quick closed loop."

Would the city also benefit from higher property taxes, once people repaired or spruced up their properties?

"A byproduct of this as well is the property taxes, based on improvements to the homes," he answered.

Villegas said that the city is also looking at a future "amnesty" program to allow people to legalize work on their home that should have been done through a building permit, but wasn't. But for now, the program will start out simple so "we don't bite off more than we can chew." If successful in 2005, the program could be expanded in future years.

Villegas said he expects to work with local hardware stores and possibly local banks to help promote the "home improvement holiday." To that end, the city is looking for ways to partner with the private sector to encourage people to improve their homes, possibly using home equity.

Besides improving the neighborhoods and stimulating the local economy, said Villegas, another goal of the "holiday" program is to get people comfortable working with the city's building department.

"There is a fear of the building department, and of having to go there," he said. "Part of what we want to do is help people break down that fear."

Those with ideas on how to partner in the "home improvement holiday" project may call the city's building department (617-4683), said Villegas.

Your advice wanted, as port land is re-planned

The project of "master planning" several hundred acres owned by the Port of Sacramento in West Sacramento's "Southport" area continues. Several public meetings are scheduled to discuss options for the land, including four alternative land use plans being developed by the consulting firm Parsons Brinckerhoff. The planning process is a joint process involving the port, the City of West Sacramento and the port's other governing partners.

The master plan will be a non-binding suggestion for the port. The port is in dire financial straits, and the future of its real estate holdings are a subject of debate.

The four land use plan alternatives will be presented on Tuesday, Jan. 18, in a workshop lasting from 6-9 p.m. at the first floor galleria in the West Sacramento Civic Center, 1110 West Capitol Avenue. Public input will help formulate a "preferred land use plan" for the port property. Planners ask that visitors RSVP by January 14, by calling Nanette Cordell at 617-4535 or by emailing nc@ci.west-sacramento.ca.us.

Two days later, planning commission members and visitors to their meeting will receive a presentation on the four land use alternatives. The meeting will be held in the city council chambers, 1110 West Capitol Avenue, at 6 p.m. on Thursday, January 20. Public comment will be accepted and will be used to help formulate the "preferred" land use alternative.

The preferred alternative is tentatively scheduled for a return to the planning commission at the commission's February 17 meeting. At the meeting, the commission will be asked to recommend the preferred alternative to the West Sacramento City Council and the Port of Sacramento.

For nine years, Vic and Dawn Bakarich, along with assistant coach Rick Usrey, have given up three nights a week and every weekend during the soccer season to coach the West Sacramento Troopers, which will formally disband at a celebration honoring the Bakarich's and the accomplishments of their team which will be held in January at the new Round Table Pizza in Southport Center.

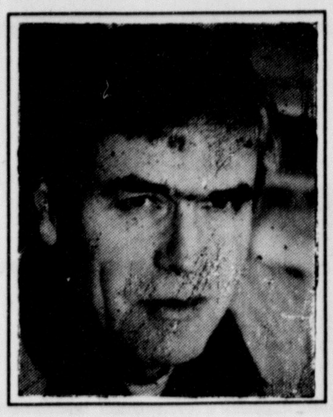
Two-thirds of the Troopers have been with the team for most of the nine years, beginning as "Tiny Troopers" and growing up to play competitive soccer in the Metro League where they have often been regarded as the team to beat.

"Vic and Dawn have nurtured the abilities of our children and have provided constant support to bring them to a high skill level," said parent, Dr. Mathew Wampler. "Without their unfailing commitment to the team, the Troopers would not have come this far."

The Bakarich's have long been involved in West Sacramento sports, with Vic coaching little league baseball for eight years and Dawn serving on the Parks and Recreation Sports Commission for many years.

Sponsors of the Troopers include Glass West, Premier Pools, Hart's Davis Auto Sales and West Sacramento Family Eyecare Center.

Hope truly does spring eternal



My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

In normal times, this week's column would no doubt be dedicated to listing a bunch of lighthearted and hopefully humorous new year's resolutions which I'm sure I wouldn't end up keeping anyway, but considering what is presently going on around the world in places like Sumatra and Indonesia and Thailand and India (not to mention war in Iraq and genocide in Sudan), it's kind of hard to sit down in front of a computer and try to be funny this week.

As I write this, the death toll in the coastal areas of southern Asia from last week's historic earthquake and the tsunamis which followed is listed at approximately 150,000, with tens of thousands still missing, a number that is truly mind-boggling. I keep trying to find a way to put it into perspective, but I really can't. For instance, if most of the missing turn out to have perished, too, then we're looking at a final total that will equal three times the number of American soldiers who died in the 12 years of the Vietnam War. It's simply a number that is almost impossible to get one's head around.

Every new news cycle seems to bring more and more tales of lucky survivors mixed in with the tragic stories of so many who perished. For every tale of a young girl who was able to somehow successfully hold on to the last tree left standing in her village there is a story about a mother who had to decide which of her two young sons she would try to hold onto, knowing that she wasn't strong enough to save both. Whole towns and villages which were once inhabited by thousands of people are simply no more and even those who were lucky enough to escape with their lives are living in fear of aftershocks and the reality that there is no food to eat, no clean water to drink, no home to return to, and no job to earn the money needed to get their lives back to some semblance of normal. At last count, governments and global organizations had pledged over $2 billion dollars in aid and disaster relief but even that staggering amount of money is just a drop in the bucket in terms of what will ultimately be needed.

And added to all that faraway misery and destruction is the fact that back here at home we have national politicians who are faced with the daunting tasks of somehow trying to stabilize the mess in Iraq, getting Israel and the Palestinians back to the peace table, getting out-of-control federal spending under control, stopping the continuing fall of the value of the American dollar, keeping North Korea and Iran from becoming nuclear threats, finally locating and destroying Osama Bin Laden and his growing band of cutthroats, getting Russia back on the road to real democracy, and getting our own economy roaring again -- to mention just the obvious stuff.

"Does it seem to you like the whole world is going to hell in a hand basket lately or is it just me who thinks that way?" asked a longtime friend of mine earlier this weekend.

"No," I admitted, "this new year is definitely starting off in pretty grim fashion, but I always try to look for the light at the end of the tunnel -- the hope that is always there if you force yourself to look at the bigger picture."

"Yeah," I said, "if you think back to how mankind got to the 21st century, it's not a very pretty tale. I mean, in the last century alone we've had two incredibly bloody world wars and more human misery than you can shake a stick at, so it's not like we should be surprised when disasters -- be they manmade or from Mother Nature -- strike. But there is always reason to be hopeful. And it's always important to remember that the wonder of life can't be snuffed out no matter how hard we stomp on it."

"I don't know," said my friend, "if you ask me, the lesson to be learned from this god-awful tsunami thing is not to continue to be hopeful, but rather that none of us are as safe and secure as we think we are. You know, there could be a big earthquake in the Pacific Ocean someday and it could be the people living in Hawaii or Los Angeles or San Francisco or Seattle running for their lives."

As my friend and I talked on we discussed how Americans often let themselves believe that they have enough insurance policies and live in such a politically secure and economically rich society that they are more or less immune from the unthinkable.

"I guess we just forget that our lives, too, can be washed away in a minute on a wave," said my friend, looking sadder than I had ever seen him. Then he suddenly added, "So, with all this horrible stuff going on everywhere you're telling me you're still hopeful things are going to get better? Tell me one good reason why you think that."

"I've actually got the perfect reason," I said.

"Which is?" my friend asked with obvious doubt.

"Because I am going to become a grandfather for the very first time this spring."

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

The NFL regular season came to close last Sunday without any big surprises as 12 teams prepare for the long road to Super Bowl XXXIX. The playoffs begin next weekend and end on Sunday, January 23rd. The Super Bowl game is set for Sunday, February 6th at 3 p.m. in Jacksonville, Florida. Will it be the Eagles against the Patriots or the Packers against Peyton Manning and the Colts? Stay tuned -- the fun has just begun!

The college bowl games provided us with some great games and few upsets during the week but the biggest upset was the embarrassing loss by the Cal Bears. The fifth ranked Bears were manhandled by Texas Tech 45-31 at the Holiday Bowl in San Diego. The Bears were two touchdown favorites over the Red Raiders but their defense was still in Tijuana enjoying the Mexican hospitality.

Kings Korner

The Sacramento Kings (19-9) enjoyed their 109-102 win at Utah last week and their home victory over the powerful San Antonio Spurs. The real joy came from the contribution of No. 1 draft pick Kevin Martin. K-Mart has been filling in for the injured Bobby Jackson at the guard position. The lanky 6-foot-7 guard, who was the nation's No. 2 scorer in Division I, has been outstanding at both ends of the court. Martin and free agent Maurice Evans have been providing valuable minutes for the Kings. The Kings received the bad news regarding Bobby Jackson wrist surgery. Jackson will be out for the rest of the regular season. It's possible these two young men could fill in for Jackson or maybe the Kings will go shopping for another point guard.

The Kings battled the Spurs to a low scoring 86-81win with Peja Stojakovic leading the way with 28 points. Peja and Chris Webber have been leading the team by example playing hard at both ends of the court. The Kings are starting to jell as a team but still trail the first place Phoenix Suns who have won 22 of their last 24 games. The Suns and Kings next meeting will be at the Arco Arena on February 7th.

The teams newly found teamwork comes at great time as they prepare to hit the East Coast on a five game road trip. The boys in Silver, Purple and Black uniforms will play the Knick on Tuesday (4:30) where they have lost seven straight games. After their visit to the big apple the Kings play at Toronto (4:00) on Wednesday and then it's a visit to Atlanta (4:30) and trip to Bourbon Street in New Orleans (5:00).

Major League Baseball News

The New York Yankees are like a little kid who always gets what he wants. After the Randy Johnson trade with Arizona fell though owner George Steinbrenner still managed to arrange for the $17 million pitcher to join the boys in pinstripes. Now he wants to add All-Star outfielder Carlos Beltran to his crew. Beltran wants a five year contract that will pay him around $75 million.

The Giants are done Christmas shopping and will start the season with 19 players over the age of 30 while the A's are content to use young players from their farm teams.

Week 16 in the NFL

The 49ers (2-14) finished the season like they started after losing to the New England Patriots third string players. New England rested most of their players to prepare for the second round of the playoffs. The Niners will now focus on the NFL draft and their No. 1 pick to go along 12 other selections. Two quarterbacks maybe at the top of their list in Utah's Smith and Cal's Aaron Rodgers. Expect the 49ers to make big changes in their coaching staff and don't be surprised if they trade down to select two players in the first round.

The Raiders (5-12) fumbled their way to 13-6 loss to the Jacksonville Jags and will also go through a major shake up in coaches and players. The boys in silver and black uniforms finished alone in last

NFL Playoffs

The best part of the NFL season starts on Saturday afternoon with the first Wild Card game set to go in Seattle. The first game will pit the NFC West champs, Seattle against the Rams and at 5 p.m. the San Diego Chargers will battle with the New York Jets.

On Sunday the games continue with the Colts hosting the Denver Broncos at 10 a.m. followed by a 1:30 p.m. between the Packers and Vikings.

Last week I missed on all my predictions, but my only defense was that some teams held back key players to avoid injuries. This week I like the Seahawks (- 4) at home against the Rams, who beat Seattle twice this year. The Chargers (-5 ½) will handle the Jets in a close contest that could be an overtime thriller.

On Sunday morning the Colts (-10) will beat the Broncos but Denver will cover the points while the in Green Bay weather will help the Packers (-5 ½) freeze out the Vikings from the playoffs!

See ya next week!

Selling your home: plumbing maintenance

Keeping your plumbing in good shape is important anytime -- but especially when your home is on the market. Dripping faucets or toilets that sound like a fountain not only add to your water bill, but create the impression your home isn't well-maintained, especially if the leak has begun to discolor the tub or sink.

Even if prospective buyers don't notice the plumbing when the first look, they will probably request a structural contingency if they decide to buy. Then, you'll have to make repairs anyway. And if the kitchen and bathroom need work, buyers are likely to discount the home's value much more than it would cost to repair -- or even renovate.

A woman reported that her 17-year old daughter had gone out the previous afternoon and not returned.

Ruthie sat through her own biography and then made a speech herself and quizzed the audience to see if they had listened carefully to the puppets' presentation. She talked about working hard, how dreams can come true, and her own catchphrase, PMA, which stands for positive mental attitude. She brought with her the two gold medals she won playing for the United States team in the 1996 Atlanta Olympics and the 2000 Sydney Olympics. Annie got to wear the medals around her neck and all the children got to handle these priceless items. She then graciously personalized and autographed 35 basketball cards and had nice things to say to each and every child.

Ruthie Bolton comes from a well-grounded upbringing. She grew up in rural Mississippi on a farm. She is one of 20 children born of the same parents. Her father was a minister and her mother was very busy. Her entire family sings gospel music and each person has been successful in their own right. Her oldest sister, Mae Ola, inspired Ruthie to become a professional athlete. She has never lost sight of who she is and how she got to where she is. She is supportive and giving and our children are lucky to have a role model like her in the Sacramento area.

The media is full of stories of bead behavior by professional athletes; of selfishness and greed. From stories of infighting among teammates, brawls between players and fans, and the recent steroid scandals, today's kids are having a tough time finding appropriate sports role models to look up to. Well, Ruthie Bolton has managed to fill that niche for 35 third graders this year. Annie signed up to play on the girl's basketball team for the first time ever. Every girl in her class signed up, too, all 23 of them! I have no doubt that all of the boys have signed up as well.

Recent hazards are food for thought

Two major potential hazards of the last week or two makes one wonder how they could have been prevented or reduced.

The natural gas line in Southport was broken by the crew extending the sewer line from Natomas through West Sacramento and back across the river to the big Elk Grove treatment plant. The leak prevented access to and from Southport for several hours and rightfully caused much concern due to the strong, unhealthy odors not just from inhalation, but potential fire and/or explosion, too. Seems like this could have been reduced had there been (more) cutoff values in place. It is ironic, too, that this work in Southport is being done to prevent a more expensive, more dangerous and less convenient routing of said line through the more fully developed Sacramento side; yet it seems we would have had a far less problem if our easterly neighbors had not prevented the building of a bridge across the river for Southport folks and visitors.

And that old boat that sunk near the port with the hazardous fuel going into the water: Makes one wonder why licensing and insurance rules apparently do not apply to boats like they're supposed to for land-driven motor vehicles, especially when one reads that many boats have been sunk nearby over the years, but just remain so long as they do not contain any hazardous materials. One must also wonder how low the river level must be before those sunken boats cause hazards, especially to heavier boats which set down lower for docking or movement and need deeper, less congested river way beneath to assure safe boating.

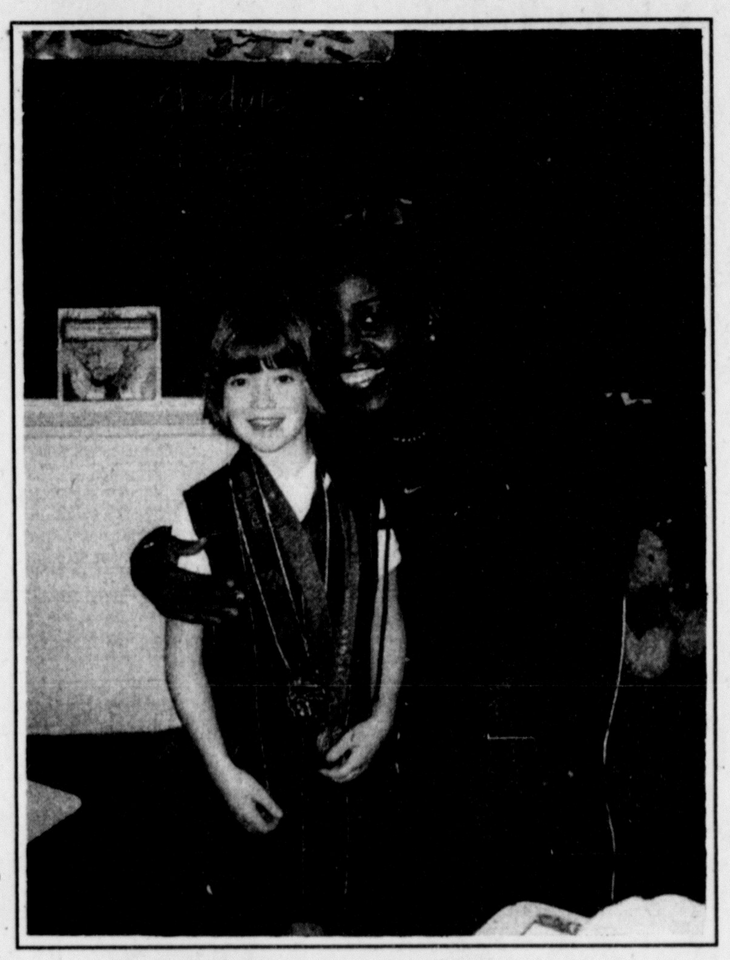
Guest Commentary:

Found! A good role model

By Sara Wampler



Annie Wampler with Ruthie Bolton

I would like to tell the story of a gift of self. Two weeks ago, my daughter Annie's third grade class was scheduled to present their book reports of the month. The subject for December was biographies. The students were assigned the task of making a sock puppet of their subject. Most of the children chose people who were heroic, courageous, brilliant, or who affected human history in one way or another. My daughter chose someone not only heroic, but someone very much alive.

A few months ago, my daughter was playing with neighborhood boys and having some sort of disagreement or difficulty which required her to stand up for herself. Her actions were observed by our neighbor, Renee, who told her that she admired the way she handled herself and that she knew someone who would appreciate such strengths. That someone happened to be Sacramento Monarchs basketball player Ruthie Bolton. A few days later, our neighbor gave my daughter a personalized, autographed basketball card from Ruthie. Well, she hadn't paid much attention to basketball up to that point, but this card started things off.

When he class biography project came around, my daughter chose a library book about Ruthie Bolton. We fashioned a sock puppet with Monarch paraphernalia and were ready to go. Annie mentioned to Renee that she had chosen Ruthie as her subject and had made a puppet of her. Well, the next thing we know, we are informed that not only does Ruthie think it is neat, but that she would like to attend the in-class presentation if she can. Wow! To actually have your biography subject come to your class! This was really exciting, but professional athletes have busy schedules so we weren't sure it would work out. It turned out that Ruthie did have something that was going to conflict with the schedule. What disappointment. Then, the morning of the biography report, Ruthie did some fancy footwork and showed up! What a moment! What a thrill! To see the excitement on the faces of 35 very surprised third

TEST DRIVE by Greg Zyla

2005 Toyota Prius Hybrid
Base price: $20,875
Price as tested: $23,651

Toyota drove off with eight major awards for its second-generation Prius Hybrid in 2004, but still found room for a few improvements in the 2005 model — the small list of upgrades perhaps proving that it's hard to improve on perfection.

Our amazement with this hybrid sedan was renewed again in our week-long test, from its futuristic push-button, keyless start to a modern design and, oh yes, the 60 mpg city/51 mpg highway fuel rating.

Disbelievers remain, so we'll repeat: Prius needs NO special maintenance (like being plugged in at night), does not sacrifice room or engine response and, to the driver, operates the same as any other vehicle.

The Hybrid Synergy Drive system that powers the Prius combines gasoline, electric and battery power to improve gas mileage and reduce emissions. The 1.5-liter, four-cylinder DOHC engine operates off the electric generator and battery power during times when you need minimal power (downhill, deceleration, idle). And yet, if you want to jump into the passing lane to overtake a rig, you stomp on the gas and the Prius responds.

While you don't notice the unique engine operation or its low emissions, there are features that certainly stand out. Among them is the Smart Key Technology, which uses a transponder in the key fob to temporarily unlock the car when the person with the key gets within 3 feet of the vehicle, even if the fob is in a pocket or handbag. Once inside, the driver still doesn't need the key to start the engine. Instead, he or she simply pushes the start button on the dash (as long as the key is nearby).

Also unique is Prius' tiny gearshift lever, which sticks out of the dash just above the key fob hole, taking up about the same space as a fan control knob on most cars. The lever, protruding about 2 inches out of the dash, moves inside a small H-shaped slot to shift from drive to reverse, etc. The unique gearshift is made possible through By-Wire Technology, similar to that used on modern jet airplanes.

Inside the Prius, "fabric cloth seats" sound generic, but look terrific and feel even better — they're almost like suede. Comforts and conveniences include AM/FM/CD player with six speakers; cruise control; a liquid-crystal multi-information display panel that includes an energy monitor; tilt steering wheel with climate and audio controls; and 60-40 fold-flat rear seat.

The $2,075 option that came with our tester included the Smart Key system, driver and passenger side and curtain airbags, vehicle stability control, front fog lamps and high-intensity-discharge headlamps with auto leveling feature. Fifteen-inch alloy wheels are standard.

2005 Toyota Prius Hybrid

Likes: Fuel mileage, shifting system, low emissions, cloth interior

Dislikes: Waiting to buy one

The Prius also matches its non-hybrid competitors in safety, with driver and front passenger dual-stage airbags, traction control, anti-lock braking system, side-impact door beams, three-point seat belts and a child restraint system.

Important numbers include a 106.3-inch wheelbase, 2,890-pound curb weight and an 11.9-gallon fuel tank.

You're never going to squeal the wheels with the Prius' 110 net horsepower, and there has been some industry skepticism of the 51 mpg to 60 mpg fuel ratings (we were closer to the lower number, in the mid-40s).

Otherwise, there is little to fault with this vehicle, and that's why orders are backlogged again this model year. In the end, it's a short wait to get to the future in environmentally friendly style, so we give Prius a 9.5 on a scale of 1 to 10.

THE CHOPPING BLOCK by Philomena Corradeno

POMEGRANATES GIVE SALSA A NEW FLAVOR

If you know pomegranates, there's no need to tell you that this odd-looking fruit with its leather-like, sometimes slightly wrinkled red skin and spiky crown, is full of sweetness with just a hint of tart.

For the uninitiated, here's the low-down: Inside these unique globes, about the size of a large orange, is a strange but delicious "collection" of edible seeds called arils which are filled with juice ranging in color from pink to dark red. The arils are completely edible, though some consumers prefer to enjoy the juice that surrounds the outer part of the seed and discard the center from their mouths. I like the whole bit. Clusters of seeds are separated by a shiny, tough, white membrane that is easily removed and discarded.

Although pomegranates are most often eaten out of hand, they are an invaluable ingredient, adding color, flavor and texture to dishes. In addition, pomegranates, fresh or dried, are used to perk up decor — table centerpieces, wreaths and so on. To dry them, lay them out in a single layer on a rack and let them stand in a cool place for a few weeks. Dried, they will last for years. To juice, whirl 1 1/2 to 2 cups seeds in a blender until liquefied, then strain in a cheesecloth-lined strainer or sieve. The juice can be used in beverages, and to make jellies or glazes.

To remove seeds, I like this way best: Cut the crown end off, removing with it some of the white pith. Lightly score skin in quarters from stem to crown top. Firmly but gently break sections apart following the score lines. Bend skin back and scoop seed clusters into a bowl; remove any remaining white pith.

Here, pomegranates give salsa a whole new flavor that's ideal for fish or roast meats, especially pork.

ROASTED SALMON WITH POMEGRANATE-AVOCADO SALSA

- 2 teaspoons ground coriander
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- Salt to taste
- 1 pomegranate, seeded
- 1/2 cup thinly sliced green onion
- 3 tablespoons fresh lime juice
- 2 teaspoons finely chopped jalapeño pepper or to taste
- 1 large clove garlic, chopped finely
- 2 avocados, preferably Hass, cut in 1/2-inch dice
- 1 heart of romaine, about 7 ounces
- 4 center-center salmon fillets, 6 to 7 ounces each, all the same thickness
- 1 lime, cut in eighths

Mix coriander, sugar and 1 teaspoon salt; set aside.

Up to 4 hours before serving, mix pomegranate seeds, onion, lime juice, jalapeño and garlic; gently fold in avocado. If holding more than 30 minutes, place plastic wrap against surface of salsa; tightly cover; store in refrigerator. Remove about 30 minutes before serving.

Separate romaine leaves; wash and dry thoroughly. Reserve 4 for garnish. Slice remaining leaves crosswise in thin shreds; set aside.

To prepare salmon, rub a generous teaspoon of reserved coriander mixture over each piece. Arrange salmon on baking sheet, skin-side down. Roast at 500 F about 11 minutes for medium rare (salmon should be spongy when pressed with finger at its thickest part) and 13 minutes for medium-well (salmon should be just firm when pressed with finger at its thickest part).

While salmon cooks, mound 1/4 of shredded romaine on each of 4 serving plates. Top with 1/2 cup salsa. When salmon is done, let it cool slightly; it should be warm but not hot. Place piece of salmon on each plate; garnish each with one reserved romaine leaf and 2 lime wedges. Makes 4 servings.

CRITIC'S CORNER By D.N.A Smith

"Meet the Fockers"

Running time: 115 minutes
MPAA rating: PG-13

The tough thing about reviewing a comedy is that we all have different senses of humor. Some of you will see (or already have seen) "Meet the Fockers" and think it's one of the funniest movies of the year.

Or not.

Guess which camp I'm in?

Here's a test: Say the title of the movie out loud. Are you chuckling? Fine. Now say the title out loud 10 more times. If you still think the word "Focker" is funny, you will absolutely LOVE this movie. If not, then stay home and save your money. I wish I had.

"Meet the Fockers" is the sequel to the 2000 hit comedy "Meet the Parents," which starred Ben Stiller, Robert De Niro, Blythe Danner and Teri Polo. The cast returns for the sequel, where Stiller and Polo (as Greg Focker and his fiancee, Pam) schlep the whole crew to Florida to meet Greg's aging, free-spirited hippy parents (played by Dustin Hoffman and Barbra Streisand).

The clash between De Niro's uptight character and Hoffman and Streisand's touchy-feeling New Agers is supposed to bring laughs — and it could have. Unfortunately, a great cast and a great opportunity are wasted because director Jay Roach takes the easy route and goes for the cheap, raunchy laugh instead of a more human comedy. Toilet and sex jokes abound in "Meet the Fockers," and most of them fall flat.

De Niro's schtick — where he's basically spoofing the tough-guy persona he's created for four decades — is wearing thin. It worked in "Meet the Parents" and "Analyze This," but the joke isn't funny any more.

Hoffman and Streisand are funny at times, but they could've been much funnier had they been given better material. Teri Polo and Blythe Danner are virtually invisible in this movie. Lucky them.

Ben Stiller and Dustin Hoffman

If you're really in the mood for a good Ben Stiller movie about families and quirky parents, rent "Flirting With Disaster," a hilarious movie Stiller did a few years back where he plays an orphan traveling cross-country to find his birth parents. It puts "Meet the Fockers" to shame.

Q. I'm a huge fan of Neil Diamond. Is he having any upcoming concerts in the near future? If so, where and when, and what has he been doing lately? I saw him a few years ago in Tampa, Fla., and he was fantastic. — Ron K., via e-mail

A. Neil Diamond has been out touring in support of his box-set release "Stages: Performances 1970-2002," a five-disc CD set with 83 songs, all but one of which have never before been released. You will, however, have to travel farther than Florida if you wish to see him any time soon. While no U.S. dates have been announced, Diamond will be playing shows (many of which sold out in less than 20 minutes!) in Australia in March, and will be in England for May and June.

Q. Please tell me about Robert Verdi from "Surprise by Design." — Dorothy S., Mims, Fla.

A. Robert Verdi began his creative career as a teenager, ditching class to make and sell his own jewelry at upscale stores in downtown Manhattan. He earned his degree from New York's Fashion Institute of Technology, and soon the world's most prestigious jewelers were begging for his wares. After a brazen phone call to Gay Entertainment Television CEO Marvin Schwamof in 1994, Verdi was hired as style consultant.

Verdi branched off into home design and began decorating the homes of such clients as Courtney Love, Ricki Lake and Sandra Bernhard. He created Metro TV's "Full Frontal Fashion," and recently began hosting E! Entertainment Television's "Fashion Police" show, replacing Joan and Melissa Rivers.

Q. Could you please tell me the name of the actress who played Robert Young's wife on "Father Knows Best"? Thank you. — Rebecca, via e-mail

A. Actress Jane Wyatt played Margaret Anderson, the wife/mom on this popular sitcom that aired from 1954-1960. Born in New Jersey in 1911, Ms. Wyatt was also seen in a plethora of television movies after the run of "Father Knows Best," including "Neighbors," "Adventures of Tom Sawyer," "Amelia Earhart" and "Father Knows Best: Home for Christmas" (1977). She also played Spock's mother in "Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home," and guest starred on "The Love Boat" and "Hotel," along with "Fantasy Island." Wyatt found a regular place on television again when she played Katherine Auschlander on "St. Elsewhere" from 1983-88.

A Conversation with Rob Morrow

"Numb3rs," a new mid-season series on CBS, is the first television drama series from multi-Oscar nominated director Ridley Scott, whose film credits include "Black Hawk Down" and "Gladiator," and Tony Scott, who won an Emmy for "The Gathering Storm." The series focuses on two brothers: FBI agent Don Eppes, played by Rob Morrow ("Street Time," "Quiz Show," "Northern Exposure"), and his genius brother, Charlie, played by "Ray" star David Krumholtz. Together, the siblings take on the bureau's most challenging criminal cases (all of them inspired by actual events) by using a combination of police work and mathematics to produce remarkable revelations that ultimately lead them to the resolution of the crimes. Also starring in "Numb3rs" are Judd Hirsch ("Dear John," "Taxi"), Peter MacNicol ("Ally McBeal"), Sabrina, Lloyd ("Sports Night") and Alimi Ballard ("Studio City").

CBS
Fridays

Rob Morrow says when he was first asked to do the new CBS series "Numb3rs," he thought — Oh, no, not another show about FBI agents.

"But then I found out that it wasn't just 'another' FBI series. The premise was original and the writing intriguing. And when I learned I'd be working with Peter MacNicol, and that Judd Hirsch would play my father and David Krumholz my brother, that was it: I had to do this show."

Morrow says the real star of the series is mathematics — which, he insists, is really a very sexy subject.

"Nothing could happen without mathematics. I know a lot of people may remember struggling through algebra and geometry," Morrow says, "and thinking how great it would be when they finally don't have to deal with math. Well, we all deal with math every day of our lives in one way or another, whether it's to balance a checkbook, build a house, paint a picture, plot the course of a space vehicle, play a musical instrument or retile the bathroom floor."

Or solve baffling crimes on "Numb3rs" every week.

"That, too."

Rob Morrow and his wife, Debbon (Debbie) Ayer, with whom he collaborated in 2001 as writer, director and co-producer on their award-winning film "Maze," have a daughter who will be 4 in April.

"Children are fascinated by numbers," he says, "and love to count things that are around them. And as I see with my daughter, they have a wonderful curiosity about the world — the same sort of curiosity that you find in scientists and artists. (Children) are intrigued by new discoveries and want to know more about them. But unfortunately, unless this natural love of learning is encouraged, it can be lost as the kids get older."

Finally, a recent survey indicates that the CBS "CSI" franchise ("CSI: Crime Scene Investigation," "CSI: Miami" and "CSI: New York") has turned a lot of young people on to chemistry, biology and entomology. Asked if he thinks "Numb3rs" will do the same for mathematics, Rob Morrow says, "I would hope so. (This country) has led in every (aspect) of science. At least two of our (founding fathers), Thomas Jefferson and Benjamin Franklin, were scientists, and they encouraged the study of math and science in our schools. But now we're increasingly dependent on people from other countries who have the math and science skills we need."

In Focus

"Merge" returns to Lifetime for a third season with Lisa Rinna (who also has a recurring role on UPN's "Veronica Mars," on which she and her real-life husband, "L.A. Law" star Harry Hamlin, play a married couple) back as host. Rinna believes "Merge" has helped to show many newlyweds how to avoid the hard feelings that can develop among couples who find themselves suddenly confronting the challenge of accepting or rejecting each other's "precious" belongings.

Lisa Rinna

Rinna notes that the show is really more about relationships than design. "It's always stressful to give up something you thought you'd keep forever," she says. "But there's always room for compromise, and sometimes something that one person absolutely hated suddenly becomes acceptable with a little fixing up. But once an item is declared totally unacceptable, it goes out."

There are no losers in this keep-or-toss exercise. "If the relationship benefits," Lisa Rinna says, "everyone wins."

DIAL TONE: On Sunday, Jan. 23, NBC will air The International Auto Show Special. The live, two-hour telecast from Detroit will give viewers an in-depth look at the newest models and trends in the automotive industry. NBC's NASCAR announcers, Allen Bestwick, Benny Parsons and Wally Dallenbach, will handle "play-by-play" duties.

The Sacramento River registered 16 feet 4 inches U. S. gauge at the S. P. bridge yesterday.

A. Henrye, local manager for the General Petroleum Company, has an established and unbounded faith in the future of this section of the state, particularly in the business of the General Petroleum Corporation for whom he is chief in the West Sacramento plant. Mr. Henrye has just built himself a new home in East Sacramento at 3915 T Street and moved there last Saturday from his old home at 2811 G St. Mostly all his time is spent at the West Sacramento plant except that which he uses in occasional trips around the territory with his men.

Mike Belich is a speedy boy of the Westgate district and sometimes takes chances in driving the family car on his trips around Sacramento and the select portions of East Sacramento. But Mike traveled too fast the other day and was overhauled by a traffic cop. Going thirty-five miles an hour in a thickly populated district, Mike was oblivious to everything except the exhilaration of covering ground at that wonderful speed. Last Tuesday he was overhauled again by the judge in that district and his license was suspended for thirty days. He has promised his folks that he will never again go faster in the family automobile than three miles an hour.

J. N. Carroll, owner of the West Sacramento Auto Exchange, has just sold his interest and lease to another firm of automobile mechanics and traders consisting of J. A. Newman and Joseph Schulke. Carroll has been owner of the exchange for about a year and has done a growing and remunerative business at the corner of Fifth and Margaret Streets. In taking over the business, Newman and Schulke promised to conduct it in a first class manner and being thoroughly accomplished machinists, expect to make returns on their invested capital and put away a few shekels periodically. They will pursue the same line of business as Carroll had during the past year.

George W. Roberts, owner of the grocery in the West Sacramento Auto Camp, and his wife have taken up new quarters in a three-room apartment in one of the new buildings lately erected by Pearson Brothers. Roberts enjoys a splendid business not alone with the residents of the camp but with the neighbors in the surrounding portion of town.

Work was started this forenoon by Supervisor Buckingham in completing the crossing at Kiesel Station on the Sacramento Northern Railway near Elkhorn. Before the heavy rains of last winter the crossing was widened and graded and filled to some extent but before the filling settled a heavy rain came along and made a puddle of the entire crossing. Since that time some repairs have been made so as to place the crossing in passable condition. The work being done today will place it above reproach.

THE ROAD BETWEEN ELKHORN AND WOODLAND IS IN NO CONDITION FOR AUTOMOBILE TRAVEL. MANY PERSONS BELIEVING THAT THE ROAD IS PASSABLE MAKE THE TRIP FROM WASHINGTON TO ELKHORN AND ARE THEN FORCED TO RETURN TO WASHINGTON AND PROCEED VIA DAVIS. THE ROAD BETWEEN ELKHORN AND WOODLAND WILL NOT BE FIT FOR AUTO TRAVEL FOR AT LEAST FIFTEEN OR TWENTY DAYS.

Registration of dogs has been active in this section of Yolo County since an ordinance was passed by the supervisors that all dogs in the county must be registered. Judge Barry has already registered thirty in this district and as soon as he can secure blanks will have many more to place on the list. The registration fee is 50 cents.

T. Morelli swore to a complaint in Judge Barry's court last Monday against Thomas Dupzyk for battery on the Morelli boy about six years of age. Dupzyk claims that the boy became mischievous and he shook him. The trial will take place some day next week.

A little absent-minded and dreaming of the business he is going to transact at his new service station, Jack Reuther nearly made a fatal mistake the other day while he was following his regular line of business. Jack is the town barber in Washington and the great care which he execises on his customers has been remarked by many of them. But the other day he made a mistake. "Doc" Miller, a farmer of the West Sacramento district, hasn't a great deal of hirsute adornment on the top of his head, although he has an abundance around the edges. Genially passing the time of day with Reuther, "Doc" got on the barber chair. Jack took the clippers, the ones with the electric attachment, and started under the right ear of his patient. Going clear across he took what few little hairs were left on top of "Doc's" head and to his great astonishment, "Doc" was out of the chair in half a second. The three lone hairs that were left were clipped to the roots by Reuther and since that time Jack has secured for him a new tonic that promises to restore a full growth even on concrete.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Todhunter, Mrs. Annie Barry and grandson, Seth Barry, Jr., spent Sunday on a trip to San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Reese Peek of Colfax spent the week-end here with relatives. They were en route to San Francisco to spend a two weeks' vacation.

DUAL ELECTRIC SERVICE TO BE MAINTAINED TO WESTGATE

Fearing that trouble may come about in a single service to the factories and rice mills in West Sacramento, the Pacific Gas and Electric Company has finished a new line of electric power to the mills and factories in West Sacramento.

The old line extended from the steam plant near the American River along Front street and across the river underneath at I street.

The new line crosses the large towers north of the old Pioneer Mill building, thence south along Second street to M street and thence along the levee to the bean warehouse, the Horst compressors, the two rice mills and the large pumping plants of the West Sacramento Company.

Trouble was anticipated some time ago on this old line at the Sacramento side of the river. None of the plants, however, were shut down, but in order to guarantee as far as possible a continuous supply of juice the local manager, E. W. Florence, decided on the installation above mentioned.

The old line will still be maintained as an emergency line but the new installation will be the conveyance for the power.

YOUNG BOY KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT AT BRYTE

Last Sunday Mitchell Paulkoff, son of Jack and Frances Paulkoff, was killed on the highway between the Bryte postoffice and the Rose orchard.

The death of the child came about through an auto accident in which George Herbert, a painter of Sacramento, was the driver.

Herbert was driving about thirty miles an hour, according to the story he told Sheriff J. W. Monroe, who happened on the scene shortly after the accident occurred.

His story was verified by Ernest Butterfield, E. L. Pierce and K. L. Weisler, all of Sacramento, who were riding with the driver of the death automobile.

Immediately after striking the boy Herbert stopped his car and rushed the lad to the Sacramento emergency hospital. He was pronounced dead there by Dr. Henrickson as a result of a fractured skull and hemorrhage.

According to witnesses, the lad, with his brother, George, and Peter Masloff, were walking on the highway when the latter two decided to cross. Seeing his playmates cross, young Paulkoff decided to also cross the road, and jumped in front of the automobile.

Vision of the boy was obstructed by a passing automobile, Herbert told the sheriff, and consequently, he was not able to stop the car in time to avoid hitting the boy who was crushed to the pavement.

Herbert, who is a painter in Sacramento, was badly wrought up over the accident, the sheriff stated, and did all he was able to do to save the life of the child. As the sheriff termed the accident unavoidable, he was not arrested, and will be available at any time the inquest is held.

GENERAL PETROLEUM PLANT AT WOODLAND NEARLY COMPLETED

Next Saturday a test will be made of the lately constructed plant of the General Petroleum Corporation at Woodland. The first carload of gasoline will be delivered at the plant Saturday and a test of the receiving plant will then be made.

As business demands it the Woodland plant will be enlarged to give the best possible service to the dealers in that locality and should a first class service prompt better business the corporation may establish other subsidiary plants at other towns on the West Side.

Dixon will likely be the next point at which a sub-base will be constructed.

BOOSTERS' CLUB HAD LARGE MEETING LAST TUESDAY

The Washington Boosters' Club had one of its largest meetings last Tuesday evening in the town hall.

Some matters of importance were taken up, one especially calling attention to the chuck holes that are forming on the overhead surfacing of the Southern Pacific bridge.

Some time ago the attention of the corporation was drawn to this fact, but so far the club has had no return on the question.

WASHINGTON AND WESTGATE BUS TO START MAY 1

In another column of this issue will be found the time table that will be followed, at least for a start, in giving the people of Washington and Westgate a bus service.

Permission has been received already from the State Railroad Commission for the operation of this bus and the fares to be charged are part of that permit.

For a start Joe and Victoria Misetich, owners of the bus service, are going to use two seven-passenger automobiles, but as occasion demands it that service will be improved with the addition of a large bus carrying between thirty and forty people.

The fare to Washington will be 5 cents. The fare to Westgate is 11 cents.

The line of travel will be from the Union Station at Fifth and I streets in Sacramento, thence south to L, to Second, to the Southern Pacific bridge, to Fifth street, to the subway, where the 5 cent limit will end. South of the subway to Westgate the fare will be 11 cents. The return trips will be charged similarly. The return trip will pursue the same line except that on arrivel at Second and I streets in Sacramento the bus will proceed eastward to the Union Station.

The bus service has already received the approval and endorsement of the Washington Boosters' Club and of the West Sacramento Improvement Association.

CONGRESSWOMAN DECLARES DRY LAW A GREAT FAILURE

Washington, April 17. — The San Francisco Examiner quotes Congresswoman Norton under above date as saying:

A stringent indictment of prohibition was presented to the senate subcommittee by a woman—Mrs. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, one of the three women members of Congress.

Differing with other women who have upheld and praised conditions created by the Volstead law, Mrs. Norton told the committee that prohibition is corrupting the youth of the country, destroying home life, increasing the drug habit and "killing people" with its poisons.

She added:

"It's a disastrous failure, it cannot be enforced, and it should be modified.

"I believe a great many men and women endorsed prohibition when it became a law of this country with the absolute conviction that it would promote temperance.

"Many of these same men and women are now working for a repeal of the law they then advocated, because they realize it has been a failure and has set back the work accomplished through many years to make our country temperate.

"Prohibition and temperance have no relation to each other. You must have public opinion behind a law to make it effective.

"Therefore, it would seem that there is but one solution to the horrible condition in our country today—a condition which causes every thoughtful father and mother to wonder what will become of their children if the condition is not remedied.

"The solution lies in a referendum of the people and allow them to decide definitely whether or not they are in favor of prohibition.

"The woman who used to suffer from a drunken husband now suffers from a crazy husband, who turned to narcotics because he cannot get good liquor. That was true in three cases out of fifteen I personally investigated."

She also declared the morals of America's youth were being destroyed by prohibition. She also told of liquor being sold in government veterans' hospitals.

She added:

"I have a letter here from a veteran which says that poisonous liquor was sold in his hospital and wounded veterans died from it," she added.

As for the drys' claim of prosperity under prohibition, Mrs. Norton asked:

"I would like to ask which is more important, to keep the feet of a child warm or to safeguard its character and perhaps its very life?"

THE OTHER MAN

By Doug Malloch

Perhaps he sometimes slipped a bit—
Well, so have you.
Perhaps some things he ought to quit—
Well, so should you.
Perhaps he may have faltered—why?
Why, all men do, and so have I.
You must admit, unless you lie.
That so have you.

Perhaps if we would stop and think
Both I and you.
When painting someone black as ink,
As some folks do,
Perhaps, if we would recollect.
Perfection we would not expect,
But just a man half-way correct,
Like me and you.

FILLING FOR ROADWAY NEAR M ST. BRIDGE IS TAKING SHAPE

Contractor Tucker is solving the problem of filling for the highway that is to be built from the M Street bridge west as far as the new highway in West Sacramento and which will pass under the new subway.

The work has been tedious and expensive. Instead of floating the sand taken out of the river westward to the borrow pit north of the railroad embankment, the dredger Neptune is now delivering the sand first on the levee north of the bridge and later delivering it with another swing of the great boom close to the end of the bridge.

Four-horse scrapers are then used to get the filling into the desired location.

Yesterday the grade at the end of the bridge was nearly completed and will likely be finished today.

West of Second Street only a small portion of the filling has yet been deposited. A drag has been placed at Fifth Street which drags the sand westward to the low points.

Contractor Tucker has thirty days left in which to complete his contract and he believes he can finish the job in that time.

The trough that was originally designed to float the sand to destination has been removed except for a small portion near the end of the bridge.

WESTERN HOTEL TO BE OPERATED UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

The sale of the Western Hotel, Second and Third, on K street, to Elmer E. Todd and Volney L. Fox on April 1st, was revealed Saturday with the filing of papers in connection with the deal in the office of County Recorder C. A. Root.

The consideration involved was $42,000. Thirty-three thousand dollars of the amount is secured by a mortgage held by the Capital National Bank.

The sale was made by Louis Mercier, who had been the owner of the hotel for some time.

Fox, one of the new owners, was formerly associated in the ownership of the Hotel Land.

The sale was confined to the business and personal property of the hotel and does not include the real estate.

Spanish architecture will predominate in the design for the new school.

PEDESTRIAN BADLY INJURED WHEN STRUCK ON HIGHWAY

G. Sanchez, 29 years old, 121 P St., was injured Sunday when knocked to the pavement by an automobile driven by Al Greenwood on the Davis highway. At the emergency hospital it was said that Sanchez suffered a possible fracture of the skull, a leg fracture and body bruises. He was removed to the county hospital.

Greenwood told Deputy Sheriff Harry Murphy Sanchez walked to the center of the pavement to halt him and when another machine approached became confused and walked in front of Greenwood's car.

GLIDE FERRY STILL OUT OF COMMISSION

Because of prevailing high water and the unsafe condition of the Glide ferry, Supervisor Buckingham and County Engineer Deterding of Sacramento have decided to hold the craft out of commission until repairs can be made. The boat is in poor condition, having been damaged during the late high water period.

To prevent accidents those officials decided to take the boat out for repairs, but so far have been unable to move it so that those repairs could be made.

COSTLY FERRY AT CLARKSBURG TO BE LAID UP NEXT WEEK

Figures on the Clarksburg ferry show that thoroughfare to be using an exceptionally large amount of gasoline. The figures were obtained from the office of County Auditor R. P. Wallace while he was checking over to determine the amount of refund on the number of gallons used in a certain period.

For fifty-six days, between October 27 and December 27, the figures tendered Wallace show that the ferry used 5256 gallons of gasoline, or an average of 93.86 gallons a day.

On this amount of gasoline the county received $105.12 refund according to Wallace. This is from the state as the gasoline tax does not cover counties.

The Clarksburg ferry is one of the busiest in the county, due to the fact that much river travel from the rich delta section on the Yolo side is transferred to the Sacramento County side, as better roads are located there.

It is held by many that a bridge across the river at a convenient point or a paved road up the river to Washington would eliminate much of the expense to the county in operating the ferry.

Supervisor Buckingham advises the ferry will be laid up for repairs next Monday for about three days, and residents of that district must use the Freeport ferry or the West Sacramento road.

Stop-Loss Orders and Extended Enlistments

America's Guard and Reserve troops are experiencing tough times with back-to-back deployments to Iraq and other hotspots. Fed-up, a few of the troops recently decided to sue the military for breach of contract in U.S. District Court, insisting that they had enlisted for only a specific period of time.

The Guardsmen lost in court — and here's why:

When enlisting in the U.S. armed forces, you sign a DD4 contract form. On the back of it, there are three fine-print paragraphs specifying the wartime rules.

1) In the event of war, my enlistment in the Armed Forces continues until six (6) months after the war ends, unless my enlistment is ended sooner by the President of the United States.

2) If I'm a member of a Reserve Component of an Armed Force at the beginning of a period of war, or national emergency declared by Congress, or if I become a member during that period, my military service may be extended without my consent until six (6) months after the end of that period of war.

3) As a member of a Reserve Component, in time of war or national emergency declared by Congress, I may be required to serve on active duty (other than for training) for the entire period of the war or emergency and for six (6) months after its end.

You sign the paper, and you're legally stuck, because no one knows when the war officially ends!

For the benefit of all parties, the Pentagon should clarify the contract wording to prevent a major decline in future enlistments. It might prove the best solution to the contract and extension dilemma.

The exhibit runs through March 13, and cost is $3 per person (ages 4 and up). The exhibit uses toys to "play" with concepts such as gravitational pull and energy transfer. Call (530) 756-0191.

Hunter safety

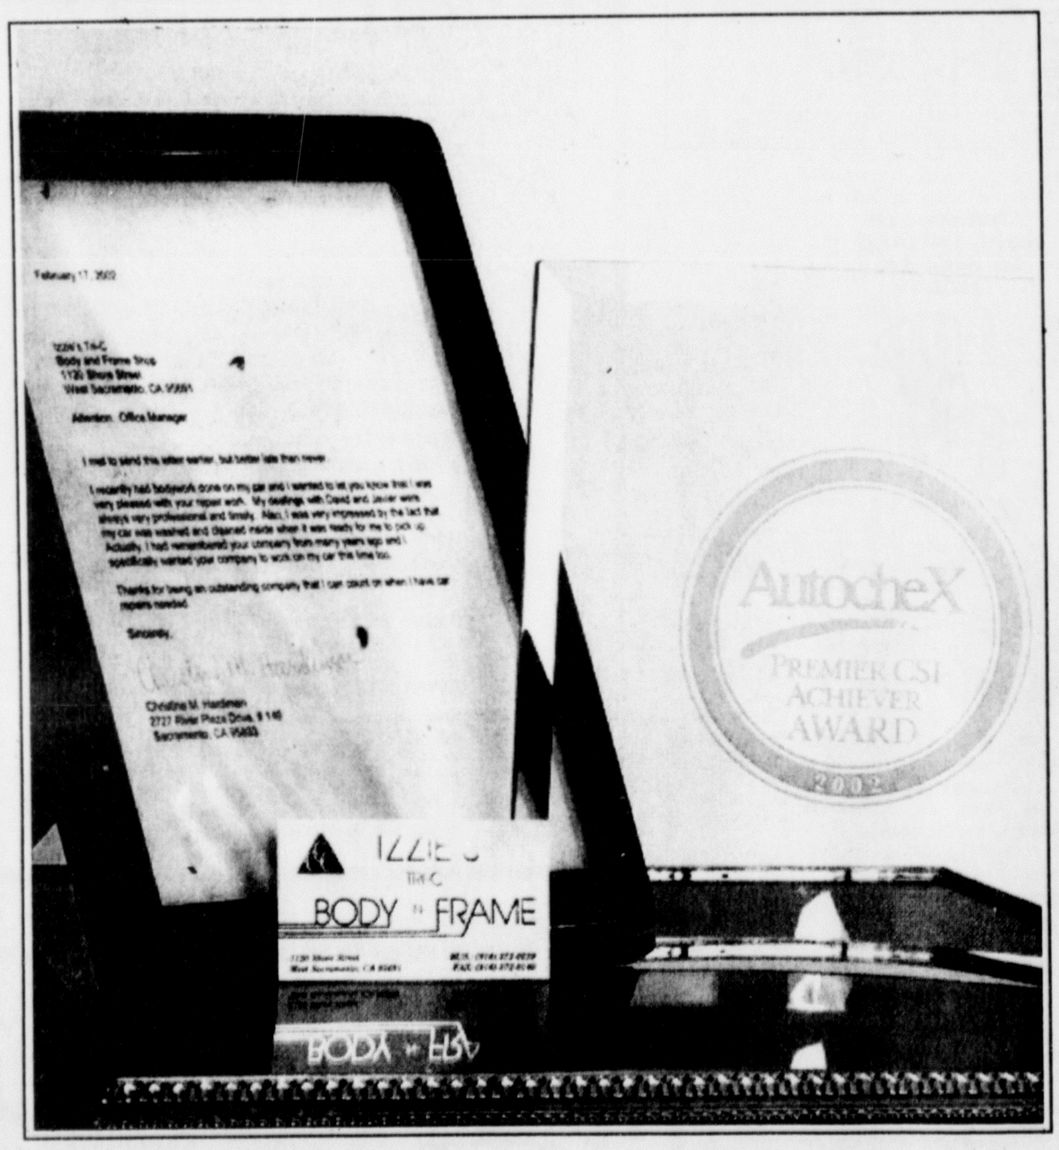
The city parks department will offer a hunter's safety course on January 11-12. This is a state-mandated class for anyone receiving a hunting license in California, and will last 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day. $10 for city residents; $15 for others. Open to those age eight and up. Call 617-4620 for more information.

Martial art

The city parks department offers an ongoing class in Tai-Chi-Chung, a self-defense strategy used primarily for gentle exercise. The class meats Mondays 7-8 p.m. and Wednesdays 7-8 a.m. at the civic center. Fee is $50 for five classes (may be taken anytime over a six-month period). Call 617-4620.

Help with the bill

Your donation will help low-income people pay their energy bills this winter. Through "Relief for Energy Assistance through Community Help," or REACH, the Salvation Army collects and distributes one-time assistance to households who need help with their bill. Call (800) 933-9677 for more information on the program. Call the same number, or call (800) PGE-5000, if you are interested in applying for assistance.



A regional leader in customer satisfaction is right here in your neighborhood.

"Being involved in a car accident is a very traumatic experience. You helped alleviate much of that trauma. From the moment my car was brought to you until the day I picked it up, I was put at ease by the manner in which you handled my unfortunate situation.
My car turned out beautifully and runs as well, if not better, than before. I would highly recommend Izzie's to anyone finding themselves looking for an honest, reputable repair shop."
-- MARILYN SPEEGILMAN

"The repair work is great, but the service was excellent.
Everyone at your company went out of their way to make this experience as painless as possible for me. They even delivered the vehicle to my home!"
-- TERI WION

"I recently had bodywork done on my car and I wanted to let you know that I was very pleased with your repair work. My dealings with David and Javier were always very professional and timely. Also, I was very impressed by the fact that my car was washed and cleaned inside when it was ready for me to pick up.
Thanks for being an outstanding company that I can count on when I have car repairs needed."
-- CHRISTINE M. HARDIMAN
